At the offices of Hogan Taylor—a business advisory and public accounting firm—a wide range of spaces are connected through a subdued color palette that makes the office feel like home. In a conference room, Lisboa acoustic cork tiles cover the wall above a built-in bench. By combining five standard tiles, a custom linear design meanders across the wall while providing a sound softening boost. Elsewhere, a series of touch-down rooms feature Muro Plus wall panels in four leathers. The mix of finished and sueded leathers gives a play of textures and depths to enliven the small spaces.
