MillerKnoll is a powerhouse of creative brands shaping the spaces where we work, connect, and collaborate. On a mission to design more welcoming, equitable, and sustainable spaces, their showrooms highlight interiors, furniture, and materials at the forefront of modern design.

The sales floor of their Manhattan showroom illustrates their commitment to sustainability and features a wide range of natural materials – Muro wall panels in a rich black leather add a sophisticated tone to a shared conference room while a dividing wall in flexible wood adds a dramatic statement between areas of open seating and private workstations.

A floor above, the marketing and showroom design floor, also functions as a work area for staff. A feature wall by FilzFelt in felt-covered Akustika with a cork backing serves as a tackable surface for collaborative brainstorming while also serving to boost acoustics. The wall adds an inviting warmth and natural texture and features a custom felt-covered logo in the same shade for an added touch that's sleek and seamless.
