For the relocated offices of this investment management firm, OTJ Architects evoked the company's culture through the use of classic but warm materials in a design which balances the desire for connection and collaboration with the need for quiet and focus. The interconnecting stair facilitates the staff's movement within the 80,000 square-foot-office with shared spaces clustered along this spine. The stair features Custom Muro wall panels with tufting and fluting accentuated by a dark brown stitching detail. Nearby, a reception desk is wrapped in Distressed leather with a pronounced waxy cord stitching detail in white. In a Game Room, additional Custom Muro panels with the same detailing feature vibrant gold stitching. The custom panels and the desk panels were installed by Spinneybeck.
